After reading Three Men in a Raft I was a little disappointed, however I still appreciated the effort, determination and guts required to organise an expedition/adventure of this magnitude and carry it through to a successful conclusion. I found the book disjointed and not flowing with the river, relying on personality disharmony and conflicts to fill the gaps. Maybe keeping SPONSORS happy made the difference. The GOOD part is I enjoyed the book and would recommend it to any reader interested in adventure on a large, daring and dangerous scale, on a very small budget. Well done. The world needs more of you guys.

If you have any interest in paddling or adventure in the outdoors, this is for you. A very inspiring story.

A well written book about 3 and then 4 guys who travel the whole length of the Yenisey River from Mongolian to the Artic Circle. Brilliant descriptions of the people they come across. I would recommend that you read Lost In Mongolia by Colin Angus first as he is on the same journey but the guys get seperated and having read about Colin, and then reading Ben's story, we get the whole picture of the trip. Two books for a whole story and both as readable as each other
