Customer Reviews

This well illustrated guide to sharks is packed with interesting information. Did you know the Greenland shark is thought to have a life span of 100 years? Although this shark is usually found in arctic waters it has been seen at depth (7,000 feet) as far south as Georgia. There are surprising omissions. For example, in the section on individual sharks there is no entry on the oceanic white tip, a shark of great interest to ship wrecked mariners. The book includes a list of scientific shark names. Presumably, this is to demonstrate that this is a "serious" rather than sensational work. Few users of the Handbook will find this section of use. On balance, if you have any interest in sharks, this is a book worth having.
