A chef, food writer and cookery teacher, Sabrina Ghayour is one of the strongest voices in Middle Eastern food today. Past collaborations include the 'Passage to Persia' pop-up with Anna Hansen at The Modern Pantry with guest chefs Ben Spalding, Omar Allibhoy, Alexis Gauthier and Tim Anderson, Oliver Peyton's 'Friday Night Socials' at The National Gallery and a pop-up at Grain Store with chef Bruno Loubet. With regular appearances at the BBC Good Food Show, Taste London and more, her work has featured in The Times, The Sunday Times, the Evening Standard, the Guardian, The Independent, The Telegraph, delicious. magazine, Waitrose Food magazine, Sainsbury's Magazine and BBC Good Food magazine. She has also appeared on BBC1's Saturday Kitchen, BBC2's Great British Menu and Channel 4's Sunday Brunch. Sabrina's debut first cookbook, Persiana, was awarded 'Best New Cookbook' at the Observer Food Monthly awards 2014 and 'Book of the Year' at the 2015 Food & Travel Awards. Her follow up, Sirocco, debuted at no. 1 and was a Sunday Times bestseller. Connect with Sabrina at www.sabrinaghayour.com Twitter @SabrinaGhayour Instagram @SabrinaGhayour

Sirocco is packed with easy, original eastern/southern Mediterranean inspired recipes. As a collector of cookbooks, and a lover of foods that originate from Iran to Morocco, I can say that Sabrina Ghayour has done an outstanding job of bringing the flavors that make that region unique into the American kitchen. While her pantry is stocked with some things you might not have, yet, once you get there Sirocco will open new possibilities to you...within minutes. Most of the dishes are simple, and can be completed quickly. My only disappointment was that the oven temps are in degrees C or gas marks. It would be nice for the US electronic version of the book to have degrees F in the recipes.
