Every season offers new reasons to get outside and explore - if you know when and where to go. Georgia Nature Weekends provides all the information you need to plan fifty-two great weekend getaways - from excursions for the serious naturalist to casual outings for the whole family. Plan terrific outdoor getaways to see: Virginia bluebells, yellow poppies, and trout lilies in a kaleidoscope of colors along the Shirley Miller Wildflower Trail; nesting sea turtles on an evening tour of Jekyll Island; the tallest waterfall east of the Mississippi River at Amicalola Falls State Park; bottlenose dolphins along the beach on Tybee Island. A handful of indoor adventures are also included for those days when the weather just won't cooperate. (6 x 9, 256 pages, b&w photos, maps)

Terry W. Johnson is a wildlife biologist with the Georgia Department of Natural Resources. He has been published in many popular nature magazines, and has been the recipient of numerous awards for his conservation work.

Love this book!!

Fantastic guide! Concise information interestingly woven together with wit and wisdom. I plan to visit all 52 sites!
